We understand the challenges facing people who struggle with food allergies or have to manage food sensitivities in their lives. We know how difficult it is to eat safely, especially when eating out.

The allergen information provided is accurate and up-to-date to the best of our knowledge. It is based entirely on the information provided by our ingredient manufacturers and suppliers. We have limited this disclosure to the 9 major allergens (wheat, soy, milk, eggs, peanuts, tree nuts, fish and shellfish, MSG) as those are the only ones manufacturers are required to disclose.

No allergen or nutritional information on our website should ever be considered a guarantee, but simply a best faith effort to serve our customers.

All of the 9 major allergens are present in our restaurants in one form or another. We ask that when placing your order you alert our manager on duty to your food allergy or sensitivity. Because all of our dishes are prepared-to-order, our normal kitchen operations may involve shared cooking and preparation areas. We will then try our best to avoid any accidental cross-contact, but again we can offer no guarantees and accept no liability.

The range of tolerance or reactions to the presence of food allergens varies greatly from person to person. Decisions on the amount of precautions you should take or risks you may expose yourself to, are always best made by you in consultation with your physician.
